frequently asked questions

When should I do an inventory count?

It is best to perform your counts when your business is closed or on a slower day of the week so that you can focus on counting while transactions are not taking place.

What if I need to leave the count to help a customer?

If you need to exit the count screen for any reason, find your count by clicking the Inventory button from the SalonBiz®/SpaBiz® menu. Then choose Inventory Count from the View List drop down menu, then select Open from the Filter By drop down menu, and double click on the count you previously created.

What does Beep mean?

Beep is merely a placeholder. It occurs every ten lines to help you stay on the correct lines between your physical count sheets and entering them into the computer.

Can I count by Vendor?

Yes, follow steps 1-7 above and then in the Count By field select Vendor. In the Select a Vendor to Add drop down menu click on the vendor you wish to count. Click on the Add Vendor button and then click on the Start count button.

Can I create the count sheets before I am ready to actually count?

Sure, you most certainly can print off any count sheets before you are ready to count. After the count sheets print make sure you click the void button and void the count.

Why do I need to void the count if I am pre-printing a count?

Mistakes in your on-hand quantities are common if you create a count before you are actually ready to count. The computer takes a snapshot much like a Polaroid picture of your inventory when a count is created. If you sell several items in between the time you create your count and actually count the inventory, those items sold will not be accounted for from the sale (they are still on the picture).

What does the red and blue mean in the error column?

The error column is the difference between the QTY column (your on-hand quantity in the computer) and the Count column (what you physically counted). The red signifies a shortage between the two columns and the blue, an overage.
